

We are an independent landscape and ecological consultancy with an excellent track record of working closely with multidisciplinary design teams and our specialist in-house consultants to create effective and robust landscape masterplanning solutions for all types of developments.

our approach

We approach our masterplanning projects with a thorough understanding of all site constraints, opportunities and planning context. We combine this understanding with a full appreciation of our clients' requirements and aspirations to achieve viable commercial coverage within an appropriate landscape structure.

We pride ourselves on combining a commercial awareness with sensitivity and design flair to create sustainable, appropriate and beautiful masterplans for a wide range of developments in urban and rural locations.

We support our landscape masterplanning expertise with the complimentary professional skills of landscape assessment, landscape design, arboricultural and ecological consultancy. This allows us to provide our clients with a fully integrated and cost effective landscape masterplanning service.

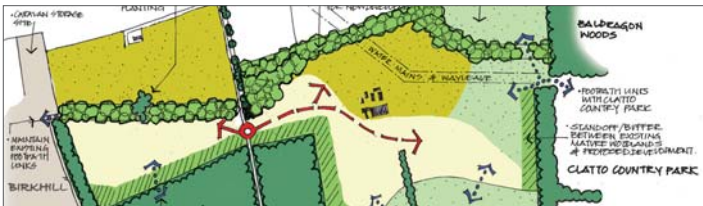

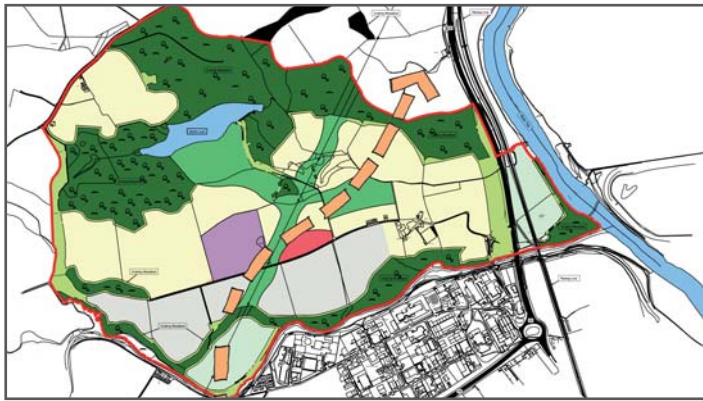

what our clients say about us

"From the initial briefing through to completion of the reports, we found the Brindley team very professional, and their work has been produced on time and on budget. They brought considerable experience to the project, and consequently had an immediate grasp of the requirements and issues requiring analysis. This meant that the tight programme involved could be achieved. Their inter-action with other design team members was also excellent.

They were recommended to us by another landscape consultant, and that perhaps speaks volumes for their reputation. We would have no hesitation in either using them again, or recommending them to others."
